Man is omnivorous. All that is edible is subjected to his vast appetite, a fact that generates gustatory powers proportionate to the use he has to make of them. In other words, the apparatus of taste is a rare perfection of man, and we have only to see him use it to be satisfied with it.

— JEAN-ANTHELME BILLAT-SAVARIN

Mmm...donuts.

Course Description Writing, like cooking, is a messy business. We constantly edit and alter our sentences (and ingredients), continually revise our drafts (and recipes), even gnash our teeth at our too-tough-to-digest, leathery prose (and overcooked steaks). Through an exploration of various topics surrounding food, we will practice writing in this course. More specifically, we will examine different genres of food writing and explore how we think about food. Topics we will consider include cultural and ethnic foods, food marketing, and various food movements. We will also examine health and diet claims and explore issues like food accessibility, food insecurity, and the future of food. As we write our way through such topics, we will likely be inspired to reconsider our existing perspectives on how and what we should eat.

ARTS 140 Course Goals and Learning Outcomes
Upon completion of this course, students will have developed skills to do the following:
1. Access information and practice navigating library resources, including indexes and databases;
2. Recognize, define, and reflect on the meaning of quantitative and qualitative data;
3. Practice writing and speaking in iterative communication assignments in a variety of genres and for a variety of audiences;
4. Collaborate with peers and provide, incorporate, and reflect on feedback;
5. Demonstrate an ability to reflect on the knowledge-making function of information, analysis, and communication;
6. Assess, examine, and evaluate the uses and purposes of information, including distinguishing between facts and values.

Course Policies

On Attendance: Simply put, the success of our course requires your contribution. Thus, your attendance is mandatory. For each in-person class missed, 1% will be deducted from your participation grade. However, you are allotted 2 free passes to miss class without documentation (i.e. an illness verification form). In terms of participation, students will be expected to be engaged in class by being prepared (i.e. having read/watched/listened to materials and found resources) and contributing to class activities.

During remote learning due to in-class cancellations (as set by the university), your course engagement and participation will be based on your assignment submissions AND your online discussion board contributions via LEARN.

On Group Work: While this course is designed with plenty of opportunities for students to interact and help each other become better writers and communicators, there are no group assignments. All submitted work must be your own.

On Late or Missed Submissions of Assignments: Because this course emphasizes the benefits of peer review, it is important that we adhere to our course schedule as closely as possible. Therefore, late or missed submissions of assignments are generally not accepted. The course schedule makes clear when assignments are due. It is up to you to manage your course load and submit your work on time. If you anticipate being absent on a day an assignment is due, please submit your work to me before that class. Unless there is a documented emergency or illness, or if there is a religious holiday for which the University of Waterloo provides accommodation, then late or missed assignments will receive a grade of 0%. Note: Travel plans will not be accepted as a reason for missed assignments. Specifics related to COVID-19, please refer to the following link: https://uwaterloo.ca/quest/help/students/how-do-i/self-declare-my-illness
University Policies

Academic integrity: In order to maintain a culture of academic integrity, members of the University of Waterloo community are expected to promote honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility. [Check www.uwaterloo.ca/academicintegrity/ for more information.]

Grievance: A student who believes that a decision affecting some aspect of their university life has been unfair or unreasonable may have grounds for initiating a grievance. Read the St. Jerome’s University Policy on Student Petitions and Grievances. When in doubt, please be certain to contact the St. Jerome’s Advising Specialist, Student Affairs Office, who will provide further assistance.

Discipline: A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity to avoid committing an academic offence, and to take responsibility for his/her actions. [Check www.uwaterloo.ca/academicintegrity/ for more information.] A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offence, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offences (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about “rules” for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course instructor, academic advisor, or the undergraduate associate dean. When misconduct has been found to have occurred, disciplinary penalties will be imposed under the St. Jerome’s University Policy on Student Discipline. For information on categories of offences and types of penalties, students should refer to University of Waterloo Policy 71, Student Discipline, www.adm.uwaterloo.ca/infosec/Policies/policy71.htm. For typical penalties, check the Guidelines for the Assessment of Penalties, www.adm.uwaterloo.ca/infosec/guidelines/penaltyguidelines.htm.

Appeals: A decision made or penalty imposed under the St. Jerome’s University Policy on Student Petitions and Grievances (other than a petition) or the St. Jerome’s University Policy on Student Discipline may be appealed if there is a ground. A student who believes they have a ground for an appeal should refer to the St. Jerome’s University Policy on Student Appeals.

Intellectual Property: Students should be aware that this course contains the intellectual property of their instructor, TA, and/or St. Jerome’s University. Intellectual property includes items such as:

- Lecture content, spoken and written (and any audio/video recording thereof);
- Lecture handouts, presentations, and other materials prepared for the course (e.g., PowerPoint slides);
- Questions or solution sets from various types of assessments (e.g., assignments, quizzes, tests, final exams); and
- Work protected by copyright (e.g., any work authored by the instructor or TA or used by the instructor or TA with permission of the copyright owner).

Course materials and the intellectual property contained therein, are used to enhance a student’s educational experience. However, sharing this intellectual property without the intellectual property owner’s permission is a violation of intellectual property rights. For this reason, it is necessary to ask the instructor, TA, and/or St. Jerome’s University for permission before uploading and sharing the intellectual property of others online (e.g., to an online repository).

Permission from an instructor, TA, or the University is also necessary before sharing the intellectual property of others from completed courses with students taking the same/similar courses in subsequent terms/years. In many cases, instructors might be happy to allow distribution of certain materials. However, doing so without expressed permission is considered a violation of intellectual property rights.

Please alert the instructor if you become aware of intellectual property belonging to others (past or present) circulating, either through the student body or online. The intellectual property rights owner deserves to know (and may have already given their consent).
